Bridgeway Island teacher earns County-wide honor

Teacher ANIKA SWISHER-SHUKUYA with a pinwheel science project. She has used assistance from PG&E for a classroom solar project, and has started a science club at Bridgeway Island Elementary School.

A teacher at West Sacramento's Bridgeway Island Elementary School has won "Teacher of the Year" honors for Yolo County this year. Teacher Anika Swisher-Shukuya was also named as "Teacher of the Year" within the local Washington Unified School District.

The county's office of education invites each school district to apply for the county-wide teaching honor. Nominated teachers fill out a "comprehensive" application packet, including a biography and answers to questions about teaching philosophy and educational issues.

"When I taught in the inner city," wrote Swisher-Shukuya in her application, "I assumed that suburban school children have a better life. Now that I have taught in a suburban school for two years, I have discovered that all children have obstacles to overcome."

Swisher-Shukuya found grant money (over $1,000) from PG&E to help her students expore "The Solar Schools Program," and started up an after school science club "which gave third through fifth graders the opportunity to perform science experiments," she said.

Swisher-Shukuya will now join honorees from other California counties in state-wide competition. Five "California Teachers of the Year" will be chosen – and one of them will represent the state in a national contest.

AT THE DUCK RACES

A fireboat helps the festivities along as over 20,000 rubber ducks make their way down the Sacramento River on Oct. 3.

Ducks were sponsored by donors in a fundraiser for the Special Olympics organization. They were then dumped from the I Street Bridge to "race" with the current downriver.

The West Sacramento Fire Department's "Boat 41" followed the ducks -- and helped corral them and clean them up after the race.

Hundreds show up for hot dogs, balloons & a ribbon-cutting ceremony

It's back.

The Arthur F. Turner branch of the county library system is back at 1212 Merkley Avenue again, bigger and better than ever.

The new branch was dedicated on Saturday, throwing its doors open for the first time. The building replaces a structure that stood for decades at the same site.

Visitors listened to speaches by those involved in the city-county project and then checked out the building for the first time.

The new 18,000-square foot branch is more than double the size of the facility it replaces, and contains more Internet-connected computers, more books, a bigger community room, and lots of "power strips" for visitors with laptop computers.

Cabinet fire doused at senior center

West Sacramento firefighters responded to the report of a fire at the city's senior center, 664 Cummins Way, on Sept. 30. While they did not immediately spot smoke when they arrived, they investigated and found smoke coming from inside an apartment at the site. A fire had broken out in a cabinet next to an oven.

The fire was extinguished, reported a WSFD spokesperson.

A home on Meadowlark Circle caught fire on Sept. 24, leading to a heavy response from the West Sacramento Fire Department.

Shortly after the call at about 1 p.m., responding firefighters found the two-story home under heavy smoke, with flames visible on the second story and attic. A second alarm was called, and units from the city of Sacramento, UC Davis and the City of Davis responded to West Sacramento to provide additional cover.

Crews opened up the roof to get at the flames.

The occupants successfully got out. One firefighter was hurt slightly when his leg went through a burned-out portion of the second floor, reported a fire department spokesperson.

Deer-poachers convicted

Two men arrested in 2007 for poaching deer and evading police have been convicted, reports the Yolo County District Attorney's Office.

On November 7, 2007, a truck driven by Andrew Thao led sheriff's deputies on a high speed chase on County Road 117 to West Sacramento, said the D.A.'s office, adding:

"Ernest Lytell was one of three passengers. The chase reached speeds of up to 115 m.p.h., and endangered numerous cars in oncoming traffic. When the truck reached West Sacramento, the truck ran over some police 'stop sticks' and ran off the road. As soon as the truck came to a stop, all four occupants immediately fled from the truck."

There were two large "buck" deer in the truckbed, along with rifles, ammunition and a spotlight.

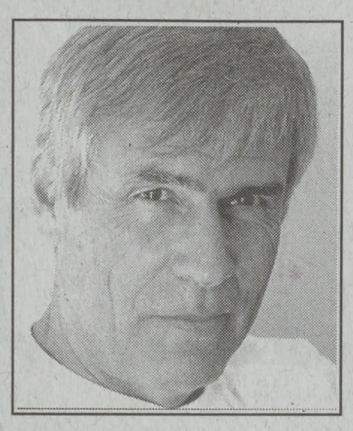
Police and a K-9 dog found three of the four suspects.

On Oct. 1, Thao was convicted of felony reckless evading, two Fish and Game Department violations and resisting arrest. Lytell was convicted of being a felon in possession of a firearm, two game violations and resisting arrest. Another suspect was a juvenile, and the fourth remains at large. The two men who were convicted face up to three years in prison and will be sentenced on Oct. 29 in front of Yolo Superior Court Judge Thomas Warriner.

"Crimes against wildlife are taken seriously in Yolo County," said Deputy District Attorney Clinton Parish, who prosecuted the case. "This is a matter of public safety as well as protecting our environment. Our sheriff's deputies did an outstanding job in this case."

The joy of having a really clean car

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Note: According to my son-in-law, he and my daughter were recently driving to the store when he said, "So, do you think your car is finally dirty enough for you to start thinking about washing it?", to which she smiled and replied, "It's driving you crazy, isn't it?", to which he replied, "It's actually making me sick to my stomach," to which she replied, "You know, when it comes to washing cars, you are so anal, just like my dad," to which I reply, "Here is that column I wrote about you when you were in your early 20s that you hated so much that you made me promise it would never see the light of day again!"

Awhile back, I was standing out in my driveway getting ready to leisurely scrub my truck from top to bottom when my twenty-something daughter suddenly wheeled her car up behind mine and slammed on the brakes.

"Can't you please pull into the driveway a little bit slower?" I asked her as she climbed out of her car. "Don't you know your front tires are going to get all out of line if you keep slamming them into the curb like that?"

"Just what in the world are you doing out here?" she asked me, ignoring my question.

"What does it look like I'm doing?" I said as I began to soap down my truck. "I'm washing my car."

"I know you're washing your car, Dad," she said, slowly shaking her head from side to side, "but the question is why?"

"Because it's dirty."

"But the weather report says it's going to start raining any minute now."

"So?"

"So your truck is going to get all dirty all over again the minute you back it out of the driveway."

"But that's not the point," I said.

"Then what is the point?" she asked with what appeared to be genuine interest.

"The point is quite simple," I explained. "My truck is filthy and it needs to be washed. If I don't do it now, it's just going to get dirtier and dirtier no matter what the weather is like."

"But don't you know how anal that is, Dad – to always have to be washing your car – even on rainy days? You don't see me washing my car all the time, now do you?" she said, pointing proudly to the dirtiest motor vehicle in all of West Sacramento.

"And just look at it," I said. "It's still covered with bird crap even though every bird in the civilized world flew south for the winter months ago."

As my daughter and I continued to exchange verbal punches, I found myself wondering just what it is that prevents most women from experiencing that great inner calm (I think it's a form of bliss, actually) which comes over most men when they know they are driving around in a truly clean vehicle? And why is it that even those women who do keep their cars reasonably clean prefer to have them washed at one of those trendy professional places, where uncaring minimum wage workers charge a small fortune to keep unsuspecting customers from ever discovering the real joys of car-washing?

"Dad," said my daughter, shaking my arm, "you're not listening to me."

"Sorry," I said, wondering if women will ever understand that cars actually run better when they're squeaky clean, "what did you say?"

"I said if you're going to be standing out here in the rain anyway, you might as well go ahead and clean up my car a little bit, too – if you want."

"Hey, I know what," I said eagerly, hoping for some of that great father-daughter time that comes along so rarely once they become teenagers, "why don't you grab a couple of towels out of the garage and we'll wash our cars together. How's that sound? I'll even show you how it's done."

"You mean there's actually a technique involved?" she asked with a smile. "I mean, it's not exactly nuclear science you know."

"Of course there's expertise involved," I assured my daughter as I stepped over to her car. "And to begin with, you don't want the water too hot and you don't want to leave the soap on too long – especially on hot days. And you always want to start with the roof of your car and work your way down."

"But why do I have to start at the top? Can't I just begin at the bottom if I want?"

"No!"

"Why not?"

But before I could fully explain to my daughter that washing a car from the bottom up was completely out of the question, I made the mistake of glancing through the driver's window and into the interior of her car. "My God!" I shouted in horror.

"What now?" asked my daughter with alarm. "What's the matter?"

"I don't think I've ever seen anything quite like it before," I exclaimed, still not believing my eyes.

"Like what?"

"Like the inside of your car!"

There was garbage and assorted junk scattered absolutely everywhere, including empty Diet Coke and Dr. Pepper cans, Burger King and McDonald's cheeseburger wrappers, year-old French fries as hard as a rock, dozens of wadded up Kleenex tissues, old lipstick and eye mascara containers, used straws, discarded pens and pencils, old books and college exam papers, paper clips, coins of every size and denomination, gym clothing in need of a good wash, and even a couple of combs big enough that they could probably be used to successfully fight off a car hijacker.

"So just what is so wrong with the inside of my car?" my daughter demanded to know.

"Carrie, you've got to start taking care of your car!" I tried to explain from my hopelessly male point of view. "Don't you understand, the inside of a car is a sacred place. It's a person's home away from home. It's where you listen to great music, and think really profound thoughts, and make out for the first time, and hide from all the problems of the real world. And you have to keep it clean – even cleaner than the outside of your car."

"Well, it looks perfectly okay to me."

"No, no, no, it does not look perfectly okay! It looks like the inside of a giant purse!"

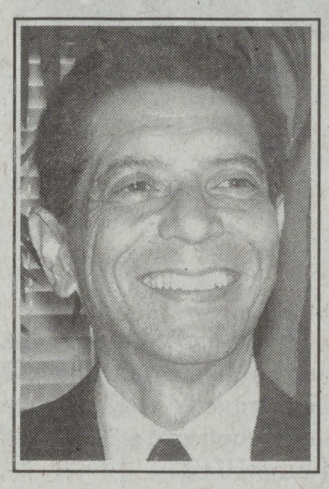
SPORTS INSIDER



By Richard Novoa

I just love the chilling winds and rain storms that the fall weather brings to our Northern California sky in October because it means it's time to head in doors and grab the remote control to our cable boxes and light up the fire place. The month of October means professional sports is in full bloom with NHL Hockey, NBA Basketball, NFL football, College football and yes, the World Series!

Hockey, basketball, football are great cold weather sports but I'm really starting to wonder if major league baseball should be played in October. Couldn't the baseball owner's start the regular season in March so the players could focus on playing baseball instead of shopping for long johns, gloves, scarf's and down jackets? It seems awful cold for these millionaires to play the most important part of their long season in cold weather, especially in the snow?

The Rockies, who were hosting the Phillies, had a snow ball fight brake out in the stands but its ok now because Colorado was eliminated by Philly so now it's possible to see a West Coast vs. East Coast series that would thrill the baseball fans everywhere and increase the ratings for television or should I say the cable networks.

Maybe it's me, but playing baseball in 38 degree weather doesn't seem like too much fun to watch in person but it's possible the World Series could be played in Los Angeles, as the California Interstate-5 series. Wouldn't that be great for October baseball? The players could trade in their long johns and just apply sun tan lotion during the games or head for the beaches afterwards, with their surf boards and picnic baskets to enjoy the 70 degree California weather!

The Fall Classic

The road to the 2009 World Series is definitely going through the City of Los Angeles with the Dodgers hosting the Philadelphia Phillies in the National League Championship series and the Anaheim/Los Angeles Angels taking on the Bronx Bombers from New York City.

Let's take a closer look at which teams will meet in the 2009 World Series. In the National League the Dodgers will survive the Phillies in six games and the Angels will win the series in seven games over the Yankees and dedicate the victory to Nick Adenhart, their young pitcher who died earlier this year in car accident.

Kings Korner

Sacramento has been home to the franchise since 1985 and the Arco has been home to the Kings since 1988. The Arco Arena is the smallest arena in the NBA by size, and second-smallest (to Orlando's Amway Arena) by seating capacity, which is 17,317 for basketball.

The Kings and the NBA have been campaigning for a new arena to be built in downtown Sacramento or at the Cal Expo facility for years, but voters rejected a ballot measure to fund construction with a sales tax increase. The Kings have a few cities like Las Vegas, Anaheim, St. Louis, San

RCHS soccer shuts out visiting Center High

By Gladys Mendoza
River City High School
Journalism Class

On Thursday night at River City High School, the boy's varsity soccer team was victorious against Center High School with an end result of 3 to 0.

As the game begun, the team started playing very well. Center high school played well with good defense. RCHS struggled in scoring but didn't give up after Ivan Hernandez scored the first goal at the end of the first half.

"We played more as a team than focusing on scoring and winning," said player Ozmar Aburto, junior. The team was really proud of Miguel Angel Napoles after he scored two goals in the second half.

West Sacramento Elks

The West Sacramento Elk's Lodge, with the name River City Ribbers competed against five professional rib cooking teams, sold over 1000 racks of ribs and won the coveted 1st place, People's Choice award at this year's rib cook-off held at Raley Field. The annual contest took place over the weekend of October 2nd through 4th and has always been a part of the Rhythm and Ribs events. The West Sacramento Elks have competed in the Raley Field Rib Cooking contests for seven years and this is the third straight year they have won the 1st place, Peoples Choice award. In 2006, at Rhythm and Ribs, they won the 1st Place Sauce award (for their barbeque sauce) and also won the Mayor's "Bone Appetit" award.

The Elks compete in the rib cooking contests to raise funds for their community service projects, to support the lodge and to inform people about the Elk's organization and the work they do. Anyone, man or woman can join the Elks. The West Sacramento Lodge is located at 423 3rd Street. Barbequed Rib Dinners featuring the Elk's delicious, award winning ribs and sauce recipe are held the first Saturday of every other month from February through August. Tickets are $12.00 in advance and $17.00 at the door for the "All You Can Eat" dinners. The famous Fish Fry Dinners are held on opposing months, starting in March. In addition to dinner events, the Elk's have Bingo every Friday night, open to the public, doors open at 6:00pm. They also sponsor many community service and seasonal events throughout the year including cooking for the Little League and girls Softball League on opening days with all profits going back to the Leagues. Anyone who is interested in joining or who would like more information about the Elks or their events is welcome to call (916) 371-7122 or come to the lodge.

Food assistance for women & children pays dividends

By Ada Barros-Heiser
Health Educator
& Cheryl Boney
Director of Public Health Programs
County of Yolo

It is now widely accepted that the U.S. is in the middle of an obesity epidemic. At the same time, many Americans go to bed every night without enough to eat. How does an epidemic of obesity and hunger co-exist? Researchers have found the primary contributing factor to both is poverty.

To combat hunger in the U.S., federal food assistance programs such as food stamps, school breakfast and lunch programs, and the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) Supplemental Nutrition Program were established. Since their inception, these programs have helped in alleviating hunger for many families in the U.S.

Yolo County, initiated its WIC program in 1979. Operated out of the Yolo County Health Department, WIC provides nutrition and food assistance services to low-income families in Yolo County with pregnant and/or breastfeeding mothers, infants and children up to the age of five who are at nutritional risk. Yolo County's WIC services include nutrition counseling and classes, breastfeeding promotion and support, referrals to health and social services, and checks that can be used to buy specific foods.

Recently, the federal WIC program redesigned its food packages. This is the first major change to the foods that WIC provides since the program began in 1974. These changes significantly expand the diversity of nutritious foods offered to program participants. WIC participants will now receive fruits and vegetables and whole wheat bread and grains in addition to the milk, cheese, eggs and other foods that have always been offered. The new WIC options emphasize reduced-fat dairy products and also include tofu and soy beverage as an alternative to milk. Additionally, there is a greater variety in the WIC offerings to accommodate the cultural food preferences of WIC participants.

In Yolo County, these changes will benefit the 5,250 women, infants and children currently in the WIC program. It will also benefit local farmers as it is expected to boost sales of fruits and vegetables in Yolo County grocery stores. These changes mean that stores authorized to participate in the WIC program, which previously did not sell fresh fruits and vegetables, and other healthy items, especially those in Yolo County's rural communities, will now expand their offerings to be compliant with the new WIC requirements. This is a benefit to all Yolo County residents, beyond those in the WIC program.

The WIC program has shown a health care cost savings of $3 for every $1 spent on the program. This is even more critical now as demand for services has increased with the declining economy. A year ago the number of Yolo County participants was 4,950. This coming year, the Yolo County Health Department expects to reach 5,650 Yolo County residents, an increase of 700 who need help accessing healthy food for their families. Each food package is worth an average of $64 per month in healthy foods for the women and children who participate in the program. This translates into a savings of $16 million annually in health care cost in Yolo County.

Through education and access to healthy foods, the Yolo County Health Department's WIC program will continue to provide our youngest and most vulnerable a healthy start in an effort to end hunger. For more information about Yolo County's WIC program, call (530) 666-8445 or visit www.yolohealth.org.

Letters to the Editor

Thanks, Mr. Sjurson!

"OuRCity News" would like to say thank you to Mr. Willis Sjurson for donating his used camera to the Journalism class at River City High School.

This act of kindness was very helpful to our class because we are in need of little gadgets, such as cameras, a scanner, etc, to make this class run smoothly. With budget cuts and this economy, items like these are hard to come by. Now, we are able to write great articles and take the pictures we need to go along with these pieces of writing.

Thank you again Mr. Sjurson for your support and much appreciated donation.

Sincerely,

Wasting taxpayer money

The fire department is having another open house, spending our tax money on food and drinks for everyone. Let's look at our tax bills we just received. The second highest tax is for the West Sacramento Fire Department. What right have they got to party on our tax money? One open house should have been good enough.

Traffic cameras

At the last city council meeting I was shocked when the council rejected Police Chief Drummond's proposal to install five red light violator traffic cameras where drivers most frequently run red lights in the city. It would have been revenue neutral since the fines would have generated the funds needed to pay for the cameras.

At first, council member Johannessen appeared to support the proposal, but he was quickly out-argued by members Kristoff, Villegas, and Mayor Cabaldon, resulting in a 4-0 rejection of the cameras (Mayor Pro-Tem Beers was not available). And only after the vote was taken was I able to register my support for the traffic cameras, even though I had requested to speak on that item early.

The council did not want to invade the privacy of their constituents. But I thought law-breakers should have their privacy invaded. Or is the privacy of law-breaking constituents more important than the safety of the law-abiding ones, including pedestrians.

Fines and embarrassment should be major incentives for violators to drive more carefully, right?

Louis D. Brandeis: A Life
by Melvin I. Urofsky
(Pantheon, $40)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

In his 23 years on the U.S. Supreme Court, Louis D. Brandeis helped to formulate many of our ideas regarding free speech, right to privacy, pro bono legal work and the necessity of federal regulation in economic affairs. Although he has been dead for almost seven decades, many of his court decisions continue to reverberate throughout almost every level of our society.

Brandeis was born and raised in Louisville, Ky. In 1875, when he was 19, he entered Harvard, where his brilliant mind and fierce debating skills led him to become a lawyer. He set up practice in Boston and built a solid reputation as an arbitrator in labor disputes. He was an unusual attorney in that if he discovered a client was in the wrong, he refused to represent him.

In 1912, he helped formulate the doctrine of New Freedom championed by Woodrow Wilson. Four years later, he was nominated by Wilson for the U.S. Supreme Court. His confirmation fight was ugly and took more than six months before he was confirmed. Justice William O. Douglas would later write that many saw the Brandeis nomination a threat because of the simple fact that he was incorruptible. He also was the first Jew to be seated on the high court.

In a fascinating new biography, Melvin I. Urofsky, a professor at Virginia Commonwealth University, draws on family papers, letters and Supreme Court documents never before available to trace the life of this incredible man. Justice Brandeis — reformer, lawyer and jurist — is both humanized and made accessible.

His action in drafting the Federal Reserve Act, the Clayton Anti-Trust Act and the law establishing the Federal Trade Commission helped stabilize the United States following the stock market crash of 1929. It is ironic that another Brandeis measure, the Glass-Steagall Act of 1933, which mandated federal regulation for banking, was repealed in 1999 under the recommendation of Alan Greenspan and, unfortunately, led to our current economic mess.

Salmon and Pomegranates Are a Flavorful Combination

If you've never tried eating or cooking with pomegranates, now's the time! Pomegranates are in season and the Wonderful, Red Wonderful and Early Foothill varieties are available in grocery stores nationwide. Pomegranate concentrate is available throughout the year

A pomegranate is about the size of an apple, and has a leathery, deep-red to purplish-red rind. When choosing the perfect pomegranate, look at the skin. It should be thin, tough and unbroken, indicating the flavor is well-developed. The pithy membrane around the seeds should not be too prominent, and the seed-coats tender and edible.

When you split the hard fruit open, a mass of red seeds in a spongy white membrane is revealed. Only the seeds, with their sweet-tart flavor and juice-squirting texture, are edible. Also, for the fullest of flavor, the seeds should have an abundance of juice. One medium-size pomegranate will yield about 1/2 cup of juice or 3/4 cup of seeds.

Pomegranates can be held at room temperature for reasonable periods of time, out of direct sun. The whole fruit or seeds can be refrigerated in plastic bags, or the seeds can be frozen separately. For longer storage, refrigerate the pomegranates at 32 F to 41 F.

Most of the fiber you get from eating pomegranates comes from the seeds. So to keep up with a healthy dose of daily fiber, crunch away! You also can sprinkle pomegranate seeds over salads, fruit desserts, cakes and puddings, or use them in marinades, glazes and for garnish. Pomegranate seeds also are a delicious topping for waffles, oatmeal, pancakes, cereal or sundaes.

For a unique way of incorporating pomegranates into your cooking repertoire, try this flavorful recipe from Rick Rodgers' "Autumn Gatherings: Casual Food to Enjoy With Family and Friends" (Morrow Cookbooks).

"If you've never roasted salmon, get ready for a treat," Rogers says, "as the oven heat seals in the flavor better than moist-heat methods like poaching or steaming. It isn't fancy — that is until it comes into contact with this special sauce, a variation of the classic beurre blanc.

"One important tip: Incorporate the butter over very low heat so it softens into a creamy emulsion with the acidic base; if the heat is too high, the butter will simply melt. While the sauce is made with bottled pomegranate juice, garnish each serving with a few pomegranate seeds, if you wish."

ROASTED SALMON WITH POMEGRANATE BUTTER SAUCE

- 1 (2-pound) center-cut salmon fillet, with skin
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- Pomegranate Beurre Rouge
- 1/2 cup bottled pomegranate juice
- 1/2 cup chicken broth or vegetarian broth
- 2 tablespoons minced shallots
- 1/2 teaspoon chopped fresh rosemary or 1/4 teaspoon crumbled dried rosemary
- 8 tablespoons unsalted butter, chilled, cut into 8 equal portions
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper

1. Preheat the oven to 400 F. Lightly oil a large rimmed baking sheet.

2. Run your fingers over the cut side of the salmon, feeling for any pin bones. If necessary, pull out the bones with sterilized tweezers. Place the salmon on the baking sheet, skin side up. Season with salt and pepper.

3. Cut the salmon vertically into 6 equal portions, but do not separate the pieces. (This makes the salmon easier to serve after cooking.)

4. Roast until the salmon show just a hint of bright pink when prodded in the center of the fillet at one of the cuts with the tip of a knife, 12 to 15 minutes.

5. Meanwhile, make the Beurre Rouge. In a medium saucepan, bring the pomegranate juice, wine, shallots and rosemary to a boil over high heat. Cook until the liquid is reduced to 2 tablespoons, about 6 minutes. Reduce the heat to very low.

6. Remove the pan from the heat and whisk in 1 tablespoon of butter. Whisk until the butter softens into a creamy texture, occasionally returning the pan to the heat to keep it warm, but not hot. Repeat with the remaining butter, 1 tablespoon at a time. Season with the salt and pepper to taste. If you wish, strain the sauce through a coarse-mesh wire strainer into a serving bowl, but I usually skip this refinement, as the sauce will taste great one way or the other. Do not bother to try to keep the sauce piping hot — it will be heated by the warmth of the salmon.

Serve the salmon on individual dinner plates, and spoon the sauce on top. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.

Extra camera?

The newly-revived journalism class at River City High School could use a donated digital camera or two. A decent "point and shoot" digital camera would be of use to the students, as would a higher-quality "digital SLR" camera for more demanding work. If you can help, please contact teacher Aland Hoermann at 375-7800 ext. 2809 or email him at ahoermann@wusd.k12.ca.us.

City plans

The City of West Sacramento is updating its "general plan," which will govern land uses (and possible city expansion) over the next 20 years and beyond. Several alternative plans are available for your viewing at http://mintierharnish.com/projects/westsac/index.html. A public workshop is scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 15, at 7 p.m. at the city hall galleria, 1110 West Capitol Avenue. Future meetings will be posted on the city website, www.cityofwestsacramento.org.

Gardening

The Yolo County UC Cooperative Extension Master Gardeners will offer several workshops on Sat., Oct. 17, at Woodland Community College, 2300 E. Gibson Rd. in Woodland. From 9-10:20 a.m. will be a workshop on backyard and worm composting; at 10:30 there will be a session on fall planting and cleanup; "winter cover crops for a healthy garden" follows at 11:05 a.m.; and "benefits of mulch for dry climates" at 11:40 a.m. No charge. ROWING

Nearly 800 athletes -- from high schoolers to senior citizens -- descended on the Port of West Sacramento on Sunday for a day of rowing competition.

The 'Head of the Port' regatta was sponsored by the local River City Rowing Club.

Competitors took the water in boats from 'singles' to eight-person crews. For this fall-style regatta, competitors started one after another and battled both the clock and each other over a three-mile course.

SPORTS from p. 3

Diego, San Jose and even Kansas City, from where the Kings defected in 1985, are very interested in providing a new arena for relocation.

Well, just when the Kings start to develop their young team, another injury derails their start of the 2009/10 season. I'm talking about forward Francisco Garcia dropping weights on his right arm causing a fractured right arm and dislocation of his shooting wrist.

The Kings next game will on Saturday night against the Golden State Warriors (7 p.m.) with No TV action.

NFL Week 6

Both of our Bay Area NFL teams took terrible lopsided beatings last weekend by a combined score of 89-17, which probably didn't reflect the real story. The 49ers, who hosted the Atlanta Falcons, seemed awful cocky before kick-off only to be beaten into submission by a focused Falcon team while the Raiders appeared very intimidated in their third straight rout.

The Oakland Raiders (1-4) traveled to New York to get embarrassed on National T.V. 44-7 by the undefeated Giants while the 49ers took their 45-10 whipping at home before a sold-out crowd of 69,732 at Candlestick Park.

The Raiders were held to only 124 total net yards and JaMarcus Russell had another miserable day behind center passing for 100 yards, fumbling three times while being sacked six times. Da Raiders are in trouble because Donavon McNabb and the Eagles are headed to the Oakland Coliseum next Sunday (1:15 p.m.) but were lucky the game will probably be blacked out in Northern California.

The Niners (3-2) on the other hand are guaranteed not to lose this week because it's their bye week and it couldn't come at a more opportune time especially with Gore injured and their new receiver Michael Crabtree learning the playbook for his first NFL appearance in Houston on October 25th.

It was ugly and very uncomfortable to sit in front of my Direct TV Super Fan set-up to watch 7 hours of horrible professional football. I found myself changing the channel and watching the exciting 6-3 barn burner won by the Browns over the hapless Buffalo Bills but at least the game had a real winner!

Aztec's Picks

Speaking of winners, my dog Aztec's "College Lick of the Week" was a winner (Washington U.) plus the dog scratched out four winners against one loss in the NFL, to improve to 14 wins and 11 losses entering the sixth week.

This week's "College Lick" is Notre Dame (+10 ½) at home against USC and in the NFL the dog likes the Redskins (-6 ½) at home against KC, Carolina (-3) will win at Tampa Bay and the Saints (-3) will beat the Giants in the battle of the undefeated. On Monday night the Chargers (- 3 ½) will save their season with a win over Denver.

World Cup 2010

USA men's soccer team marched into the hostile environment at San Pedro Sula, Honduras and came away with a hard-earned 3-2 victory to clinch a World Cup berth. With the win, the U.S. qualifies for the 2010 World Cup in South Africa.

The United States is now on top of the CONCACAF qualifying group and is assured of one of the three automatic berths. Mexico also clinched a World Cup berth on Saturday with a 4-1 victory over visiting El Salvador. Costa Rica moved into third after winning at home against Trinidad and Tobago. Honduras isn't out of it yet, and plays El Salvador on Oct. 14 in the last WC qualifier.
